VARSITY GOLF

One of the Farm's most consistent, least praised champions, the varsity golf squad heads for another national crown at South Bend, Indiana, this summer. By submerging U.C.L.A., 25 to 2, U.S.C., 21 to 6, and Cal, 23 to 4, in early spring dual meets, the Cards have shown themselves another of Eddie Twiggs' "dream" teams. Bud Brownell, number one player, is pointing toward the national individual title which was denied him in 1941 by a single hole. Frank McCann, Sandy Tatum, George Traphagen, Pete Jones, and Bill Barber complete this outfit, which must go through the formality of individual play-offs to quality for the nationals.

FRESHMAN GOLF

Not only should the Stanford varsity win the national college title this year, but from the 1942 freshman golf ranks Coach Twiggs will get enough top-flight linksmen to keep his teams in running order in 1943, '44, ad infinitum. Jack Shuler, Bill Lowe, Bob Cardinal, Larry Hudson, Bob Rosecrance, Pete Brown, Don Jones, and Gordon Erickson made up the roster of Encina golfers who whipped Modesto, 24 to 3, and who were preparing for a cinch win over the impotent Cal frosh as the Quad went to press. Twiggs, terming the frosh the "best balanced first-year men for some time," looks happily forward to controlling college golf circles indefinitely if his future frosh teams are of the same calibre as the 1942 players. Rain during the early season stopped many practice sessions, but failed to dampen frosh golf spirit.
